HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 22ND, 1890.

THAT Russia is covetons of Kores, or at least a part of the peninsula, no sensible person can doubt. The time when she will attempt to put her designs into execution must, however, remain a matter of speculation. It may be in a year, or not for twenty five years, or even fifty years, but the blow will be struck as soon as the opportunity seems ripe. We may expect, however, to receive some previous notice of the event from the Japan Mail, which journal professes to know all about it. On the fête day of the Russian Emperor, the 11th September, our contemporary was reminded of quite a number of things, concerning which it wrote a leading article, in much the same strain as a more conventional journalist might write complaints or wishes on the subject of overat the opening of a new year. Amongst pressure before the general public, might other things, the writer was "reminded by address Dr. EITEL; Inspector of Schools. have not been without the usual crop of dis. | ing overworked in the Colony is not confinturbing rumours concerning Russian in. ed to schools, but includes out-door work. he goes on to inveigh against a party of ing building materials to the Peak. writers in the East who make it their busiwith features of reality and who manage to distrust which is in steelf calculated to assist the events they describe.
